

MONTHLY FACTSHEET MARCH 2017

Investment objective

Long-term growth in income and capital through active investment in global equities, using a multi-manager approach.

Monthly commentary

Global equity markets have continued to make headway in 2017, with March being another positive month for many investors. European markets were particularly strong (+4.6%) as political risks were judged to have receded following the Dutch election. Asian markets were also strong (+2.6%). Laggards this month were the US (-0.9%), Japan (-1.1%) and commodity stocks (-1.3%). Cyclical stocks gave back some of their recent outperformance as the equity market rally, which followed the US election, became more broad-based. High quality and dependable growth sectors (such as consumer staples) as well as industrials, utilities, and technology performed well last month.

Government bonds, which suffered a notable de-rating in 2016, have traded in a relatively narrow band so far this year but volatility has started to increase a little, as investors grapple with the prospect of monetary stimulus being gradually withdrawn. Some of the policies which fuelled the post-election 'Trump Trade' appear to be meeting with resistance within the Republican Party in Congress. This may dilute or delay agreement on tax reform but also reduces the risk of policy taking a significantly more protectionist turn.

Despite these uncertainties, this was a positive environment for the Company's portfolio. The NAV total return for the month was 1.6% which compares with the Benchmark total return of 1.5%. The share price total return was 1.8%. Over the past 12 months the share price total return of 32.2% outperformed the 28.9% total return achieved by the Benchmark as the discount, which widened in 2016, has continued to narrow. The 12 month NAV total return was also 28.9%.

2016 was a difficult year for active managers as macro-economic and political events trumped corporate fundamentals. 2017 has started in a less polarised environment and the individual attributes of the companies chosen by our stock-picking managers are showing signs of greater influence. Meanwhile, equity valuations, whilst not low, are generally supported by signs of improving economic growth and corporate earnings. Investors should keep an eye on the bond market however as the Federal Reserve continues to target a more normal monetary policy. Higher base rates are, in themselves, not necessarily negative as they would signal a more normal economic environment. Provided that policy tightening remains gradual, the bond market is likely to soften rather than collapse and equities will be able to respond to earnings developments, which have shown signs of improvement in recent months.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Please remember, past performance is not a guide to future performance and the value of shares and the income from them can rise and fall, so investors may not get back the amount originally invested. This marketing communication is provided for informational purposes only and should not be construed as constituting an offer or a solicitation to buy or sell interests or investments in Witan Investment Trust PLC. Investment trusts can borrow money to make additional investments on top of shareholders' funds (gearing). If the value of these investments falls, gearing will magnify the negative impact on performance. If an investment trust incorporates a large amount of gearing the value of its shares may be subject to sudden and large falls in value and you could get back nothing at all. Emerging markets tend to be more volatile than more established stock markets and therefore your money is at greater risk. Other risk factors such as political and economic conditions should also be considered. Funds which specialise in investing in a particular region or market sector are more risky than those which hold a very broad spread of investments. Funds investing in overseas securities are exposed to and can hold currencies other than Sterling. As a result, exchange rate movements may cause the value of investments to decrease or increase. Some, or all, of the annual management fee may be charged to the capital of the Fund. Whilst this increases the yield, it will restrict the potential for capital growth. Net Asset Value ("NAV") performance is not the same as share price performance and investors may not realise returns that equal NAV performance. Where a fund holds a limited number of investments and one or more of those investments declines or is otherwise adversely affected, it may have a more pronounced effect on the Fund's value than if a larger number of investments were held.
